The SSE EPS Stadium Seating System is the most economical and easiest to install tiered seating system on the market. The basic installation involves the placement of numbered EPS blocks into the configuration of the seating platform.

Each EPS platform is assembled according to SSE shop drawings illustrating the size and location of each block in the system. Starting at the first layer, blocks are secured to the floor and each other with a special EPS adhesive. Then, once the blocks are assembled, the 16 gauge riser plates and connecting hardware are installed to secure the platform system in place.

Each 16 gauge riser plate is designed to integrate with connecting hardware. The riser plate serves as a face plate for the platform and a pour stop for the concrete topping slab.

Riser plates are typically 120" long and 4" taller than the overall riser height of the finished platform. The connector strap hardware is prefabricated to the overall depth of the platform.

The connector straps are fabricated to attach to the front and rear riser plate with sheet metal screws.

This assures a secure and ridged assembly to serve as a form for the 4" concrete topping slab.

The assembly can also be designed to allow a 4" slot of vertical concrete along the leading face of the platform. This is typically used for additional concrete for encapsulation, reinforcing steel and/or as an anchor point for riser mount seats.

Typically, intermediate steps between the platform levels are included in the tiered seating system. The intermediate steps are available as single or double steps depending upon the overall height of the platform.
